

Pegasus retire to West Papua to write new songs.

The most successful Swiss pop band Pegasus is travelling to Raja Ampat in Indonesia.

A small private island in Raja Ampat, West Papua, surrounded by the most beautiful coral reefs on earth, with only untouched nature except for the small dive resort Raja4Divers - this is where the Swiss pop band Pegasus will reside for the next two weeks. Pulau Pef lies in the heart of the coral triangle with one of the world's largest biodiversities of fish and other marine creatures.

Founded by the Swiss Maya Hadorn more than ten years ago, the resort consists of just ten bungalows built in traditional Papuan style from natural materials, nestling on stilts along the west coast with beautiful sunset views.

On Pulau Pef («the fragmented island»), Pegasus are planning to draw inspiration for new songs from the incredible nature above and below the water, the friendly atmosphere at the resort and the people of the region.

Music also plays an important role in the lives of Indonesian people, especially in Raja Ampat. Raja4Divers' employees form the «Pef Band», who regularly sing and play their island tunes on 20 guitars, three ukuleles, eight drums and a large, self-made bass. So the odd jam session with Pegasus may just happen once in a while...

Noah Veraguth and his fellow musicians will document their stay at Raja4Divers on their social media channels, e.g. on Instagram and Facebook. The same content will also be available on the resort website: www.raja4divers.com.

You can also find images, videos and texts created by Pegasus during their stay at Raja4Divers, as well as texts and images of the resort at Raja4Divers' website.
